

Beth Foulk Biography

An avid genealogist for more than a decade, Beth Foulk enjoys the research, records, and history inherent in the study of a family tree.

Foulk is a volunteer and instructor at Midwest Genealogy Center, Independence, MO. In addition to assisting patrons individually, she's developed a portfolio of lectures and created a Beginners Workshop with workbook.

It is her intense curiosity and interest in American History and sociology that propels her to search deeper and ask more questions. Foulk frequently attends national conferences to further broaden her knowledge base.

Enthusiastic and dynamic, she delights in the opportunity to share her passion with those similarly interested in genealogy.
