

Beth Foulk Biography

An avid genealogist for more than a decade, Beth Foulk enjoys the research, records, and history inherent in the study of a family tree.

Foulk is a volunteer instructor at Midwest Genealogy Center, Independence, MO. She gave two addresses at the Center's Annual Conference.

Several of Foulk's classes are featured on the Family History Center's website.

It is her interest in American History that propels her to search deeper and ask more questions. Foulk frequently attends national conferences to further broaden her knowledge base and research skills.

Enthusiastic and dynamic, she delights in the opportunity to share her passion with those similarly interested in genealogy.

Member: National Genealogical Society, Genealogical Speakers Guild, and New England Genealogical and Historical Society
